

Michigan Reads! One State, One Children's Book Program

Q: What is Michigan Reads!?

A: The Michigan Reads! program highlights the importance of reading and sharing books with children, especially toddlers through early elementary school age. It also recognizes the vital role of libraries which provide access to quality books, programs and services to children and families that lay the foundation for reading and school success. Michigan Reads! raises awareness of the intergenerational nature of literacy and the value of sharing books with children, especially during their critical developmental stage between birth and age 5. Michigan Reads! promotes early-childhood literacy in Michigan and engages teachers, librarians, caregivers and parents in reading and sharing books with children ages birth to eight.

Q: How does the program work?

A: Each year a book is selected based on literary merit, readability and appeal to children. Preference is given to a Michigan or Great Lakes children's author. The Library of Michigan provides a kit to all schools with a K-2 classroom, all public library locations, Head Starts and Great Start Readiness programs in the state. The Library of Michigan maintains and promotes an active website at www.michigan.gov/michiganreads with current and previous programming materials and additional resources for teachers and parents.

Q: What is the book for 2013?

A: The 2013 Michigan Reads! One State, One Children's Book Program title is Woolbur written by Leslie Helakoski; illustrated by Lee Harper. The book is published by HarperCollins, copyright 2008.

Q: Then what?

A: Parents, grandparents, caregivers, older siblings, and volunteers are encouraged to read the Michigan Reads! title to their preschooler sometime – or many times – in September and October. The Library of Michigan arranges for the author, and sometimes the illustrator, to present programs at selected libraries and schools across the state. Schools and libraries use the book and program materials to hold their own programs, knowing that around all of Michigan, other groups are doing the same, and in doing so, providing a consistent literacy experience for children and families.

Q: How is the program funded?

A: Target is our generous sponsor of this statewide program. The Library of Michigan Foundation and HarperCollins are also supporters of the program.

Q: What is included in the kits that go out to the libraries, schools, and Head Start and Great Start Readiness programs?

A: Each kit includes:

- a hardcover copy of the Michigan Reads! book;
- a programming resource guide developed specifically for Michigan Reads! and the selected title with many activities directly linked to state education standards;
- stickers for young readers;
- a poster describing the program; and
- a set of bookmarks highlighting early childhood literacy tips for parents

Q: How are the books selected each year?

A: The Michigan Reads! title is selected annually based upon several criteria including:

1. Appropriate for children grades Pre-K - 2nd with wide kid appeal
2. Lends itself to programming – and story extenders
3. Living author and/or illustrator, preferably from the Great Lakes region
4. Artistic merit/illustrations match the text - with engaging color and art
5. Book will stand the test of time, have literary merit, be multi-faceted
6. In print / widely available
7. Available in hardcover. Other formats such paperback, AV, and big book preferred.
8. Recent copyright
9. Inclusive in nature

Q: When does the author go on tour and which libraries/schools are included?

A: The author tour takes place in September and/or October and we list the locations, dates and times in August at www.michigan.gov/michiganreads.

Q: What is the impact of the program?

A: Research shows that children learn more from birth to age 5 than during any other time in life. Reading regularly to children during this early period ensures the development of appropriate levels of language acquisition, listening skills and reading readiness. Parents and caregivers play a critical role in introducing kids to the wonder and enchantment of reading. Children who are read to 30 minutes a day from birth to age 5 will build up 900 hours of literacy preparation while, just as importantly, strengthening relationships with the people who read to them. Michigan Reads! encourages family bonding through reading. It also increases awareness and usage of Michigan's public and school libraries as excellent resources for learning.

Q: What are the previous Michigan Reads! books?
